INTRODUCTORY.

The following interest calculations are made on the sum of one hundred dollars for any number of days on a basis of 360 days per year, this being the common usage. To find the interest on any other sum, multiply the amount on which the interest is wanted by the interest as given opposite the number of days and, under the rate per cent you wish to use.

EXAMPLE.—What is the interest on $746 60 for 270 days at 7 per cent?

By referring to the table, we find opposite 270 and under 7 per cent the figures 5.2500. Multiply this amount by 747 (it is always customary to discard everything under fifty cents and call fifty cents or over one dollar) and we have the amount 39.217500 or $39 22.

On all the results of the calculations by the use of these tables place a dot after the first six figures, beginning at the right and running to the left. All figures to the left of this dot are dollars and the first two to the right are cents and the other four fractions of a cent.

EXAMPLE.—What is the interest on $416 25 for 318 days at 5 per cent?

Opposite 318 and under 5 per cent we find 4.4166, which multiplied by 416 gives 18.373056 or $18 37.

EXAMPLE.—What is the interest on $325 for 346 days at 6 per cent?

Opposite 346 and under 6 per cent we find 5.7666, which multiplied by 325 gives 18.741450 or $18 74.

EXAMPLE.—What is the interest on $40 for 45 days at 3 per cent?

Opposite 45 and under 3 per cent we find .3750, which multiplied by 40 gives .150000 or 15 cents.

EXAMPLE.—What is the interest on $25 for 75 days at 4 per cent?

Opposite 75 and under 4 per cent we find .8333, which multiplied by 25 gives .208325 or 21 cents, nearly.

If interest is wanted for any other rate than those shown in tables, it can readily be arrived at by doubling one of the given rates or adding two or more of them together.

Short rules for calculating interest without the use of fractions or parts of months.

Multiply the number of dollars by the number of days and

Divide by 120,	if for 3 per cent.
“ “ 90,	“ 4 per cent.
“ “ 72,	“ 5 per cent.
“ “ 60,	“ 6 per cent.
“ “ 45,	“ 8 per cent.
“ “ 40,	“ 9 per cent.
“ “ 36,	“ 10 per cent.
“ “ 30,	“ 12 per cent.

The answer will be in cents.

EXAMPLE—What is the interest on $500 00 for 135 days at 8 per cent?

500 multiplied by 135 equals 67 500. This divided by 45 gives $15.00.

Any number of dollars converted into cents will show the interest for the following number of days:

If 3 per cent,	the interest will be for 120 days.
“ 4 “ “ “ “ “ “	90 days.
“ 5 “ “ “ “ “ “	72 days.
“ 6 “ “ “ “ “ “	60 days.
“ 8 “ “ “ “ “ “	45 days.
“ 9 “ “ “ “ “ “	40 days.
“ 10 “ “ “ “ “ “	36 days.
“ 12 “ “ “ “ “ “	30 days.

EXAMPLE—What is the interest on $960 00 for 72 days at 5 per cent?

We simply call the dollars cents, $9 60, and we have the answer. The result would be the same at other rates for the number of days above stated.
